TAKE 5 WEDNESDAY

Hi

Happy Canada Day! It's time to celebrate everything that makes Canada a special place to live. Be kind, be safe, be proud to be Canadian!

Should you consider selling your home and renting in retirement?

According to this article two-thirds of Canadians own their homes. As they approach retirement, many have not saved enough to live on comfortably. In some cases, they are still paying off debt. Selling the family home and renting can offer many retirees freedom from financial worries so they can enjoy their leisure time. It can be especially helpful for those who want to retire early. Speak with your financial planner to see what options are available to you.

A survival guide for tough times

Unexpected events can make debt unmanageable for some people – events like losing your job, experiencing disability or illness, or ending a marriage. This guide will give you the information you need to approach your creditors and work with them to find a solution.

Teach your kids how to avoid online scams

Kids are spending more time online than ever and cybercriminals are exploiting popular websites, apps and games to create convincing scams that can fool both kids and adults. Adopt these best practices as a parent or guardian to educate your kids about the dangers, and limit their exposure to frauds and scams.

Fake remote job offers

Remote work is on the rise, and so are fake remote job offers. Job seekers should research offers carefully and check whether the offer came from an official company email address. Question people who say they found your resume online and want personal information such as your SIN, date of birth or driver's license number. Click here to notify the Competition Bureau if you believe that a company or an individual has tried to scam you.
